This course examines various elements and aspects of International and Domestic Terrorism. Students explore the cultural and ideological philosophies, as well as the social, economic, political, and religious conditions of select states, groups, and individuals that comprise the phenomena of terrorism. By examining the historical and contemporary aspects of terrorism students develop a working knowledge of the current Global War on Terror and are better prepared to comprehend terrorist motives and ideologies. Topics include: History and Development, Types of Terrorism, Conventional and Unconventional terrorist tactics, the Media's impact on terrorism including the US Counterterrorism Policies. Particular attention is addressed to the Al-Qaeda terrorist network.

Course Scope

SCMT319 Global Terrorism is a comprehensive undergraduate course in terrorism studies. It is an academic course suitable for both practitioners in the various anti and counter-terrorism fields, but also those students who have no previous knowledge or grounding in the study of terrorism. The syllabus is diverse and broad in range, and is calculated to provide a solid knowledge of all topics related to the phenomenon of terrorism. This is accomplished by standard Undergraduate learning methodology. Primarily, the majority of the course amounts to the assimilation of basic facts and concepts. To facilitate this, each individual aspect of terrorism is systematically isolated, dissected and examined in turn.

Secondly, this assimilation of facts and concepts is supplemented by a more advanced study method, which consists of examining differing and sometimes conflicting perspectives and comparisons of terrorism. This secondary method is calculated to stimulate analytical, comparative, critical, logic and integrative skills, in strict keeping with Undergraduate study methodology. It is provided by appropriate assignments partly involving published books on terrorism and a limited amount of guided and self-initiative led research of given topics.

Evaluation Procedures

Grading is based on six responses to forum prompt responses; 12 classmate (or instructor, if a follow-up question is asked) forum responses; untimed and open book midterm and final examinations; and a research project.

FORUM DISCUSSIONS:

There will be six graded forum discussions during the course. Each forum will be valued 10.42% of your course grade (62.5% of your course grade for all six forums). However, the first required forum is an introduction posting due by Sunday of week 1. It requires you to introduce yourself to classmates, outlining your background and class expectations in 250 words. Recall the university policy of posting 250 words by Sunday of week one. Failure to do so will result in automatically being withdrawn from the course.

You will post one response to the forum discussion prompt and a “minimum of two responses (more “substantive” responses for a “superior” score) to your classmates (or instructor, if a follow-up question is asked) each discussion week (weeks 1 – 3 and 5 – 7). “Single space only” in forums. Importantly, to keep everyone on the same sheet of music, “post only during the current course week” (do “not” post in advance).

The response to each forum prompt must be a minimum of “500 words” in length (“excluding” the directions, questions, quotations, notes, or references). Each of the required two responses to your classmates (or instructor) must be a minimum of “200 words” in length. Each forum discussion prompt response will be valued at “70%” your forum score and each “classmate/instructor response” will count as “15%” of your forum score (30% in total).

Forum Prompt Response/Classmate (instructor) Response General Information and Scoring Details: Essentially, the excellence of your effort is considered when

STUDENT WARNING: This course syllabus is from a previous semester archive and serves only as a preparatory reference. grading your forum prompt responses and forum responses to classmates/instructor. It is critical that you ensure your forum prompt and forum responses to classmates/instructor are on time and meet the minimum lengths to avoid a loss of points. Although there are length minimums, your score is predicated on the quality of your thinking and writing - “not” the length of your writing. Excess verbiage is usually a sign of poor editing and too few words are a sign of poor analysis. Forum prompt responses must reflect some new or original information – do not just reiterate content or opinion posted by classmates. Lastly, write in “three to seven” sentence paragraphs and avoid writing in outline form unless absolutely necessary (write in essay/narrative form).

Your forum prompt response must reflect college-level comprehension, analysis, discussion, application (where appropriate), and learning. To demonstrate college writing, thoroughly discuss and relate your answers/responses in both source and anecdotal language. Paraphrase, quote “only” when absolutely necessary, and provide examples, differences/similarities, analogies, etc. Forum prompt responses and responses to your classmates/instructor must reflect “critical thinking” skills (critical, analytical, evaluative, etc.) – not your ability to simply transfer verbatim text content to the forum platform. You must strive to apply, demonstrate, illustrate, relate, analyze, appraise, compare/contrast, criticize, deduce, debate, determine, differentiate, distinguish, estimate, evaluate, examine, and/or predict in your forum responses. Show you are able to synthesize and evaluate knowledge in a “cogent manner.” This includes thoroughly explaining your positions/answers.

Properly formatted (per the APA) sources (via proper in-text citations and references) are required for quality, learning, and “scoring” purposes. Specifically, supplement/enhance your forum prompt response content (which is generally drawn from the course textbook or directed sources), but outside sources (peer-reviewed journals, trade publications, government reports, legitimate/credible websites, etc.) to enhance your knowledge base are strongly encouraged. Use of the AMU Online Library and Security Management/Course Library portal is highly encouraged.

Citation and Reference Style: This course requires students to use the citation and reference style established in the Publication Manual of the American Psychological Association (sixth edition). Washington, D.C.: American Psychological Association. A very good APA source is the The Owl at Purdue University: <https://owl.english.purdue.edu/owl/> There is also a comprehensive Web video on APA sixth edition in general and how to format a formal research paper in APA sixth edition in particular located at: <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=9pbUoNa5tyY>

Sources from Wikipedia are “not” to be used, as they are academically unreliable.

Penalties: Unless “preapproved - in advance of the due date,” “each” late forum prompt response and classmate response will be penalized 10 points “per day” late.

STUDENT WARNING: This course syllabus is from a previous semester archive and serves only as a preparatory reference. Also, students who fail to respond to instructor or classmate questions are also subject to 10 point scoring penalties. Lastly, those who do not include their reading and/or outside sources within their primary forum posting are subject to 15 point penalties.

EXAMINATIONS:

The midterm (week four) and final (week eight) examinations are untimed open book assessments. Each is valued at 12.5% of your final grade. The examinations will be comprised of objective (multiple choice and true/false) and comprehensive essay questions that cover selected sections of the textbook and additional assigned readings.

Penalties: Late examinations will be penalized 10 points “per day.”

RESEARCH PROJECT:

A Terrorism Event Research Project is due in week seven and is valued at 12.5% of your final grade. Project details can be found under “Assignments.”

Penalties: Late projects will be penalized 10 points “per day.”

Grading Scale

The points earned on discussions, classmate/instructor responses, assessments, and the field project will determine your final course grade on will be based on the following grading table:

Grade Instruments	Points Possible	Course Weight
Forum Discussion Prompt Responses (6) & Responses (2 per discussion week – 12 in total)	100/600	62.5%
Midterm Examination	100	12.5%
Terrorism Event Research Project	100	12.5%
Final Examination	100	12.5%
TOTAL	100	100%

When I Grade/Comment Note: It is university policy to grade all student work no later than five days after the week’s closing date. Since all coursework is due on Sundays (with the Friday night exception of Forum prompt responses), this means you will have your weekly grades and comments posted by Friday of the “following” week your work

Writing Expectations

All written submissions should be submitted in a font and page set-up that is readable and neat. It is recommended that students try to adhere to a consistent format, which is described below.

- Typewritten in double-spaced format with a readable style and font and submitted inside the electronic classroom (unless classroom access is not possible and other arrangements have been approved by the professor).
- Arial 11 or 12-point font or Times New Roman styles.
- Page margins Top, Bottom, Left Side and Right Side = 1 inch, with reasonable accommodation being made for special situations and online submission variances.

Citation and Reference Style

Students will follow the APA Style as the sole citation and reference style used in written work submitted as part of coursework to the University. Assignments completed in a narrative essay or composition format must follow the citation style cited in the APA Style.

Late Assignments

Students are expected to submit classroom assignments by the posted due date and to complete the course according to the published class schedule. As adults, students, and working professionals, I understand you must manage competing demands on your time. Should you need additional time to complete an assignment, please contact me before the due date so we can discuss the situation and determine an acceptable resolution.

Netiquette

Online universities promote the advancement of knowledge through positive and constructive debate – both inside and outside the classroom. Forums on the Internet, however, can occasionally degenerate into needless insults and “flaming.” Such activity and the loss of good manners are not acceptable in a university setting – basic academic rules of good behavior and proper “Netiquette” must persist. Remember that you are in a place for the rewards and excitement of learning which does not include descent to personal attacks or student attempts to stifle the Forum of others.

- Technology Limitations: While you should feel free to explore the full-range of creative composition in your formal papers, keep e-mail layouts simple. The Sakai classroom may not fully support MIME or HTML encoded messages, which means that bold face, italics, underlining, and a variety of color-coding or other visual effects will not translate in your e-mail messages.
- Humor Note: Despite the best of intentions, jokes and especially satire can easily get lost or taken seriously. If you feel the need for humor, you may wish to add “emoticons” to help alert your readers: ;-), :), ☺

Turnitin.com

Turnitin.com is a web-based plagiarism prevention application licensed, for campus use, through the APUS Online Library. Your assignments will be automatically submitted for review and requires no action on your part.

Turnitin.com analyzes electronic submissions of student writing, compares them to the contents of a huge online database, and generates a customized Originality Report. The database used to produce this analysis contains a massive collection of documents available on the Internet from both free and commercial sources, as well as the full texts of all other papers that have been previously submitted to Turnitin.com.

Similarity index is based on the amount of matching text to a submitted paper:

Blue =	no matching text
Green =	one word to 24% matching
Yellow =	25 -49% matching text
Orange =	50-74% matching text
Red =	75-100% matching text
