Course Description (Catalog)

This course addresses information systems, to include their nature and role as key management resources. Student involvement with system analysis, system design, and implementation issues is set within a framework of available information technology, the socio-technical environment and the functional requirements of day to day operations. Course work and student assignments will stress two aspects--the application of innovation and creativity in dealing with the systems conditions and the ability to work effectively as part of an autonomous team. The student must have access to MS Excel, MS PowerPoint, and MS Access (2003 or higher).

This course has been evaluated by the American Council on Education. Credit Recommendation at the graduate level, 3 semester hours in Management Information Systems or Management.

Course Scope

Today, in business, we see the emergence of a new digital firm. Global business opportunities afforded by electronic business and electronic commerce combined with the exponential change in technology power and capacity has fueled the creation of this digital firm. Every aspect of the firm is not only touched by the digital process, but has been transformed by it.

Managing information systems has become a task for all levels of managers and all function areas of the business. In today’s digital firm there is no escaping the opportunities (as well as the challenges) that technology brings. This course focuses on appraising the nature of the digital organization and the key issues in managing it.

Course Objectives

A successful student will fulfill the following learning objectives:

1. Assess the need for information systems in businesses. Explain the role played by systems serving the various levels of management in a business and their relationship to each other.

2. Evaluate the impact of information systems on organizations.

3. Analyze the relationships among ethical, social, and political issues that are raised by information systems.

4. Discuss the challenges of managing IT infrastructure and management solutions, and evaluate tools and technologies for providing information from databases to improve business performance and decision making.

5. Explain how Internet technology supports communication and e-business. Analyze how Internet technology has changed value propositions and business models.

6. Discuss why information systems need special protection from destruction, error, and abuse, and evaluate the most important tools and technologies for safeguarding information resources.

7. Assess the challenges posed by enterprise applications and analyze how enterprise applications can be used in platforms for new cross-functional services.

8. Evaluate the business benefits of using intelligent techniques for knowledge management. Evaluate the role of information systems in supporting the activities of managers and management decision making.

9. Demonstrate how building new systems produces organizational change.

10. Analyze the principle risk factors in information systems projects and evaluate strategies for managing project risk and system implementation.

11. Evaluate the issues and technical alternatives to be considered when developing international information systems.

Submit your Term Paper Outline and Term Paper through the Assignments area of the classroom. Forum posts only need to be posted on the forum and I will review them there and manually update your assignment grade accordingly.

Assignment Requirements

This course has a strong writing component. The goal is to organize, synthesize, and demonstrate your comprehension of core concepts investigated during this course by applying a combination of the terms, concepts, and details you have learned in a systematic way. As important as "the details" that you analyze and arrange in your writing, however, are the conclusions you draw from those details, and your predictions, responses to, and ultimate interpretation of those details.

Weekly Forum Activities

Most weeks of this course you will participate in a forum activity. Each forum activity will consist of one or more threads/topics. The assignments may involve discussion or debate. The questions are designed to allow you to apply what you have learned in the chapter to real-world scenarios or hypothetical, but realistic, situations. Post your answers to the questions in each thread prior to 11:59 p.m. ET on Thursday. The only exception to the Thursday deadline is week one of the course when your initial post will not be due until Sunday. Please do not be late with this post because your classmates will be relying on you to post on time to give them a post to respond to later in the week. A discussion period will then ensue from Thursday through Sunday. Read your classmates' posts and post at least two follow-up messages to your classmates' posts in each thread prior to 11:59 p.m. ET on Sunday. Some threads may require you to post more than two replies, so make sure you read the directions carefully. Of course, you may always post more than the required number of replies and you are encouraged to continue participating in the discussion even after you have met the minimum number of posts required. Your forum participation will be considered at the end of the semester if your grade is on the borderline. Borderline grades will only be rounded up if you have exceeded the minimum requirements on the forum and shown insight and critical thinking in all of your posts and replies. Your follow-up posts must contain substance and should add additional insight to your classmates’ opinions or challenge their opinions. It is
